

Creating Classroom Rules

Attention, rockstar teachers! Ready to create the ultimate classroom experience? Gather 'round... we're about to lay down the law—in the most fun and dynamic way possible!

Student Involvement: Rule-Making Party!

Get your students involved in setting class rules by throwing a rule-making party! When students help create the rules, they are more invested in following them. Break out the markers and sticky notes, and let's brainstorm together. It's democracy in action!

Reframe Phrasing: Flip It to be Positive!

Here's a secret to rule-making magic: positive language! Instead of saying "Don't shout out," say "Raise your hand to speak." Hold your hand in the air with a finger over your mouth for quietness. It's all about creating a positive, encouraging atmosphere.

Flexibility: Bend, Don't Break!

Sometimes, we need to bend the rules a little to fit different situations. Maybe that means giving an extension on homework or allowing a brain break. Flexibility shows students you understand and care about their individual needs.

Reinforcement: Praise and Party!

Reinforce positive behavior with praise and rewards. Catch them being good and celebrate it! High fives, gold stars, or even a quick dance party—show them that good behavior gets noticed and rewarded. Positive reinforcement is key to building a respectful, motivated classroom.

For more free educational resources, visit mcgrawhill.info/FreeResources